JACQUES JORDAENS

Jacob or actually JACQUES JORDAENS (1593 - 1678) was a painter of the Antwerp School, to which Peter Paul Rubens and Antoon van Dyck also belonged.

The painter's first name was Jacques. In the baptismal register, this is recorded phonetically as Jac, a spelling he also used to sign his paintings. When signing letters, the painter wrote 'Jacques Jordaens' throughout his life. In the 19th century, his signature was incorrectly completed to read Jacob.

ON(T)ROEREND ERFGOED

The JORDAENSMANSION is the family home. The property is situated in a courtyard between Hoogstraat and Reyndersstraat, in the heart of Antwerp's historic city centre. The charming courtyard and the historic building together form a new event venue in Antwerp. And to pay tribute to the original owner's real name, the venue was named JACQUES.

IN THE HEART OF ANTWERP

The modularity of JACQUES can be used in a wide variety of ways. There are various spaces available, and they're also very easy to combine! It is the IDEAL LOCATION for all your private events, such as weddings, anniversaries, baby showers, communions and other family celebrations. But of course, businesses are also welcome to book us for their staff parties, seminars and meetings.

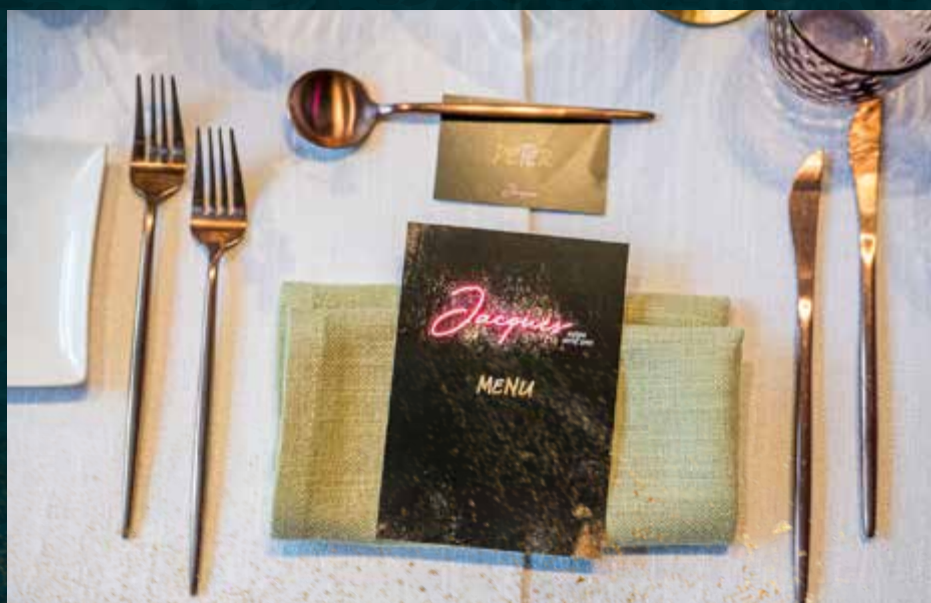

IN THE HEART OF ANTWERP

On the ground floor, there is the cosy courtyard and 3 available spaces. The beautifully vaulted cellars also offer more than enough space for exhibition displays and stunning dinner settings. In the evening, the cellar is also perfectly suited to hosting a dance party.
